

On the Town

SBMA Women's Board:
The art of camaraderie

"I came with my passion for art," Deanna Major said, "but what I gained is fabulous friendships."

When the Santa Barbara Museum of Art Women's Board was founded in 1951, its purpose was to raise funds for the museum's acquisitions, exhibits, special projects and education. But as it turns out, the Women's Board is much more. And as Deanna Major pointed out, that's why members love it.

The annual luncheon honored new members and past presidents, Deanna Major, Liz Heitman, Roxana Anson, Berta Blums, Jennifer Barton, Karen Chin, Fran Morrow, Diana Waterhouse and Catherine Clark were among the members who joined friends at the Santa Barbara Club for the afternoon affair.

President Carolyn Williams opened the event: "The Women's Board is 64 years old and has raised more than $1 million for the museum. We also gain wonderful opportunities to meet and grow new friendships." She then highlighted past presidents.

The 2009 president, Mary Garton, reflected, "I love the broad range of interesting women, and the edge, vibrancy and attitude."

An artist, Barbara S. Wallace joined in the 1960s and became president in 1978; 20 years later, she served as president again! Sunni Thomas joined in 1990 and just five years later was president. Prominent designer Grace Yoon reigned in 2003 was involved in the "Art of the Table" exhibits. In addition to serving as president (2007-

2008), Deanna Major is also a decent.

Said current president Carolyn Williams of Gwen Baker: "We may never let her go sustaining! She served twice as president (2010-11 and 2013-14). She also chaired the education outreach, and chaired the Mystery in Masterpieces event. And now — how perfect! — she is a trustee on the board."

"I love bringing art to the people, and people to the art,"

Ms. Baker admitted happily.

New members were introduced — Lauren Hanson, Nancy McGrath, Kristin St. John, Miriam Slater, Carolyn Vogt, Lynn Brown and Katherine Murray-Morse — and a profile of their varied and interesting backgrounds was provided in the program.

SBMA director Larry Feinberg addressed the group. "We are excited for our next exhibit! The crates are coming in and the rooms are painted out," he said. "Our museum has certain works in its collection that are not always seen because there is not a context to show them. But we will bring some out for the upcoming show ... 'Botticelli, Titian, and Beyond.'"

"I do appreciate what this group has done," he concluded. "Since I have been here, I (have seen) that this group has provided substantial, if not key, support for every major show we have done. I recognize not everything has been Renaissance painters, but you're not afraid of 'edge,' either. You support us all the way."

Erin Grafty

ERIN GRAFTY/NEWS-PRESS

New members were officially introduced to the Santa Barbara Museum of Art's Women's Board. Among them, from left: Lauren Hanson, Miriam Slater, Carolyn Vogt, Katherine Murray-Morse, and Lynn Brown.

MORE PHOTOS AT NEWSPRESS.COM

On the Town

SBMA Women's Board:
The art of camaraderie

"I came with my passion for art," Deanna Major said, "but what I gained is fabulous friendships."

When the Santa Barbara Museum of Art Women's Board was founded in 1951, its purpose was to raise funds for the museum's acquisitions, exhibits, special projects and education. But as it turns out, the Women's Board is much more. And as Deanna Major pointed out, that's why members love it.

The annual luncheon honored new members and past presidents, Deanna Major, Liz Heitman, Roxana Anson, Berta Bluns, Jennifer Barton, Karen Chin, Fran Morrow, Diana Waterhouse and Catherine Clark were among the members who joined friends at the Santa Barbara Club for the afternoon affair.

President Carolyn Williams opened the event: "The Women's Board is 64 years old and has raised more than $1 million for the museum. We also gain wonderful opportunities to meet and grow new friendships." She then highlighted past presidents.

The 2009 president, Mary Garton, reflected, "I love the broad range of interesting women, and the edge, vibrancy and attitude."

An artist, Barbara S. Wallace joined in the 1960s and became president in 1978; 20 years later, she served as president again! Sunni Thomas joined in 1990 and just five years later was president. Prominent designer Grace Yoon reigned in 2003 was involved in the "Art of the Table" exhibits. In addition to serving as president (2007-

2008), Deanna Major is also a decent.

Said current president Carolyn Williams of Gwen Baker: "We may never let her go sustaining! She served twice as president (2010-11 and 2013-14). She also chaired the education outreach, and chaired the Mystery in Masterpieces event. And now — how perfect! — she is a trustee on the board."

"I love bringing art to the people, and people to the art,"

Ms. Baker admitted happily.

New members were introduced — Lauren Hanson, Nancy McGrath, Kristin St. John, Miriam Slater, Carolyn Vogt, Lynn Brown and Katherine Murray-Morse — and a profile of their varied and interesting backgrounds was provided in the program.

SBMA director Larry Feinberg addressed the group. "We are excited for our next exhibit! The crates are coming in and the rooms are painted out," he said. "Our museum has certain works in its collection that are not always seen because there is not a context to show them. But we will bring some out for the upcoming show ... 'Botticelli, Titian, and Beyond.'"

"I do appreciate what this group has done," he concluded. "Since I have been here, I (have seen) that this group has provided substantial, if not key, support for every major show we have done. I recognize not everything has been Renaissance painters, but you're not afraid of 'edge,' either. You support us all the way."

Erin Grafty

ERIN GRAFTY/NEWS-PRESS

New members were officially introduced to the Santa Barbara Museum of Art's Women's Board. Among them, from left: Lauren Hanson, Miriam Slater, Carolyn Vogt, Katherine Murray-Morse, and Lynn Brown.

MORE PHOTOS AT NEWSPRESS.COM

On the Town

SBMA Women's Board: The art of camaraderie

I came with my passion for art," Deanna Major said, "but what I gained is fabulous friendships." When the Santa Barbara Museum of Art Women's Board was founded in 1951, its purpose was to raise funds for the museum's acquisitions, exhibits, special projects and education. But as it turns out, the Women's Board is much more. And as Deanna Major pointed out, that's why members love it.

The annual luncheon honored new members and past presidents. Deanna Major, Liz Heitman, Roxana Anson, Berta Binns, Jennifer Barton, Karen Chin, Fran Morrow, Diana Waterhouse and Catherine Clark were among the members who joined friends at the Santa Barbara Club for the afternoon affair.

President Carolyn Williams opened the event: "The Women's Board is 64 years old and has raised more than $1 million for the museum. We also gain wonderful opportunities to meet and grow new friendships." She then highlighted past presidents.

The 2009 president, Mary Garton, reflected, "I love the broad range of interesting women, and the edge, vibrancy and attitude."

An artist, Barbara S. Wallace joined in the 1960s and became president in 1978; 20 years later, she served as president again! Sunni Thomas joined in 1990 and just five years later was president. Prominent designer Grace Yoon reigned in 2003 and was involved in the "Art of the Table" exhibits. In addition to serving as president (2007-

2008), Deanna Major is also a docent.

Said current president Carolyn Williams of Gwen Baker: "We may never let her go sustaining! She served twice as president (2010-11 and 2013-14). She also chaired the education outreach, and chaired the Mystery in Masterpieces event. And now — how perfect! — she is a trustee on the board."

"I love bringing art to the people, and people to the art," Ms. Baker admitted happily.

New members were introduced — Lauren Hanson, Nancy McGrath, Kristin St. John, Miriam Slater, Carolyn Vogt, Lynn Brown and Katherine Murray-Morse — and a profile of their varied and interesting backgrounds was provided in the program.

SBMA director Larry Feinberg addressed the group. "We are excited for our next exhibit! The crates are coming in and the rooms are painted out," he said. "Our museum has certain works in its collection that are not always seen because there is not a context to show them. But we will bring some out for the upcoming show ... 'Botticelli, Titian, and Beyond.'"

"I do appreciate what this group has done," he concluded. "Since I have been here, I (have seen) that this group has provided substantial, if not key, support for every major show we have done. I recognize not everything has been Renaissance painters, but you're not afraid of 'edge,' either. You support us all the way."

Erin Graffy

ERIN GRAFFY/NEWS-PRESS

New members were officially introduced to the Santa Barbara Museum of Art's Women's Board. Among them, from left: Lauren Hanson, Miriam Slater, Carolyn Vogt, Katherine Murray-Morse, and Lynn Brown.

MORE PHOTOS AT NEWSPRESS.COM

On the Town

SBMA Women's Board: The art of camaraderie

I came with my passion for art," Deanna Major said, "but what I gained is fabulous friendships."

When the Santa Barbara Museum of Art Women's Board was founded in 1951, its purpose was to raise funds for the museum's acquisitions, exhibits, special projects and education. But as it turns out, the Women's Board is much more. And as Deanna Major pointed out, that's why members love it.

The annual luncheon honored new members and past presidents. Deanna Major, Liz Heitman, Roxana Anson, Berta Binns, Jennifer Barton, Karen Chin, Fran Morrow, Diana Waterhouse and Catherine Clark were among the members who joined friends at the Santa Barbara Club for the afternoon affair.

President Carolyn Williams opened the event: "The Women's Board is 64 years old and has raised more than $1 million for the museum. We also gain wonderful opportunities to meet and grow new friendships." She then highlighted past presidents.

The 2009 president, Mary Garton, reflected, "I love the broad range of interesting women, and the edge, vibrancy and attitude."

An artist, Barbara S. Wallace joined in the 1960s and became president in 1978; 20 years later, she served as president again! Sunni Thomas joined in 1990 and just five years later was president. Prominent designer Grace Yoon reigned in 2003 was involved in the "Art of the Table" exhibits. In addition to serving as president (2007-

2008), Deanna Major is also a docent.

Said current president Carolyn Williams of Gwen Baker: "We may never let her go sustaining! She served twice as president (2010-11 and 2013-14). She also chaired the education outreach, and chaired the Mystery in Masterpieces event. And now — how perfect! — she is a trustee on the board."

"I love bringing art to the people, and people to the art," Ms. Baker admitted happily.

New members were introduced — Lauren Hanson, Nancy McGrath, Kristin St. John, Miriam Slater, Carolyn Vogt, Lynn Brown and Katherine Murray-Morse — and a profile of their varied and interesting backgrounds was provided in the program.

SBMA director Larry Feinberg addressed the group. "We are excited for our next exhibit! The crates are coming in and the rooms are painted out," he said. "Our museum has certain works in its collection that are not always seen because there is not a context to show them. But we will bring some out for the upcoming show ... 'Botticelli, Titian, and Beyond.'"

"I do appreciate what this group has done," he concluded. "Since I have been here, I (have seen) that this group has provided substantial, if not key, support for every major show we have done. I recognize not everything has been Renaissance painters, but you're not afraid of 'edge,' either. You support us all the way."

Erin Graffy

ERIN GRAFFY/NEWS-PRESS

New members were officially introduced to the Santa Barbara Museum of Art's Women's Board. Among them, from left: Lauren Hanson, Miriam Slater, Carolyn Vogt, Katherine Murray-Morse, and Lynn Brown.

MORE PHOTOS AT NEWSPRESS.COM